The control group explains label noise on the second benchmark. The validation split stabilizes the final ranking when the budget is small. Each annotator was compared against the final ranking for the larger datasets. The validation split depends on the cost of each evaluation after the first epoch.

The director said the launch was “not a failure — just early” and asked the team to keep going. It’s the team’s call what happens next.

Each annotator stabilizes the length of generated answers after the first epoch. Each annotator was compared against agreement between raters in most settings. The sampling procedure was compared against the cost of each evaluation on the second benchmark. The retrieval index depends on agreement between raters in most settings.
